

Mr. Bapp, Tokyo branch manager of the Associated Press, visited the War Minister at his official residence on 23th February (1932) and put forth to him the following several questions concerning the current affairs, to which the Minister gave his answers through Colonel FURUJO, chief of Press Section.

- t. Is Japan intending to station in Manchuria the present strength of force on a permancent scale?
- A. Japan has the right of stationing her troops in wanchuria in accordance with the existing treaties and so Japan will, of course, station its troops there permanently in accordance with the provisions of the treaties, but the question as to how long the present strength of force should be maintained depends entirely on the nature of things, and so it is difficult to foresee now. However, it is seen that the question now requires reconsideration since the situation has changed completely since the Manchurian Incident.
- t. What is the present strength of force in Manchuria?
- since before the incident and eleven thousand six hundred were rdded after the outbreak of the incident; in all, there were as many as twenty-two thousand troops stationed there, but a part of this strength is now being returned to Japan.

Press, visited the War Minister at his official residence on 28th February (1952) and put forth to him the following several questions concerning the current affairs, to which the minister gave his answers through Colonel FURUJO, chief of Press Section.

- Have you not a plan of removing some divisions from Japan to Rorea to relieve the Muro Division now operating in Manchuria?
- a. It the present times. I'm not considering the matter.
- Q. Is Japan going to permanently occupy marbin, Chin-Chow, Kirin, Ting-tiah-tung, Tsitsihar, Ta-ku-shang, Tung-liao and other places which are not in the manchurian Railway Zone?
- Railway Zone is a temporary expedience to rope with the current situation, and its duration depends on the progress of pacification through out manchuria and Mongolia. So far, these districts are a till ridden with the remnants of defeated troops, and groups of bandits are overrunning the place, disturbing law and order and especially, destroying the economic life of the public there. In spite of these the regions of the distribute the alle though aggravated conditions, the Japanese force has not taken steps other than to exercise the right of self-defense and to suppress the bandits. I guarantee that unless the lives and properties of Japanese troops and Japanese nationals were threatened, our military action would not exceed the scope in which we have been acting. Now since the troops of Ting-Tiao and Li-Tu which ha-ve been plotting insubordinate activities in North Manchuria under instigation of Thang-tsuo-shao, were driven out from Marbin by our TAMON Division, the political situation in North Manchuria finally began to show signs of pacification. If the armed organizations to resist and challenge the Japanese force were to disappear, I do not think North Manchuria would suffer from the havoes of war any more.

- Q. Will the troops under command of Lt. Gen. TAMON be stationed at Harbin, or will they march, in pursuit of the enemy, toward either the west or the east along the Chinese Eastern Railways, or toward the north-west, heading the lower course of the Sungair River?
- murdered, injured, and raped our fillow country men both of the homeland and Korea, destroyed and looted their houses and the TAIHOKU Newspaper office, and again made surprise attackes on our troops at several places along the southern part of the Eastern China Railway specially at Shwangchengpu, must be repreached to the end, however, the action will depend on the tactical movement of the troops, coping with the situation.

Q. Your Excellency do you believe that the occupation of harbin and use and control of branch lines of the Eastern China Railways will not lead to elesh with the Poviet Union?

no intention of causing any trouble with that country. Rather I appreciate the fair attitude of both the Soviet Union and the authorities of the Eastern China Railways, who have fully understood the righteousness of our actions in North Manchuria.

Fundamentally, the Soviet Union's communistic principles and our national policy are as irreconcilable as oil and water, but as long as they respect our actions in manchuria and do not interfere, we shall never attempt to infringe upon their border. I would like to mention also that the use of the Chinese Eastern Railways by us had clearly been approved of by the Soviet Union and there has not been a case in which we took control of this railway as was alluded in your question.

- I can only say that I have never heard of such a plan.
- Does Japan desire to control the whole lines of the China Railways?

one world suffer number of the deputy on Applications

- .. Japan has never harboured such desires.
- and the New Government which is about to be established there?
- to safely secure the borders, govern the thirty million people well, respect the international faith and fidelity and give to every country of the world alike the benefits of an open-door policy and equal opportunity.
- . What is the intention of the Japanese force in Shanghai?
- was officially declared by the government, to insure the safety of the numerous Japanese subjects and the billions of wealth that district, discharging at the same time the duty which Japan owes to the world with regards to the protection of the international settlement; and so, the present trouble, as far as I can see it, will easily solved if China either stops its hostile activities or does not disturb, our execution of military to achive our aims.
- Does the Japanese force intend to occupy Shanghai for a long period of time?
- A. We have no such intentions, quickly, but as our position is of a passive nature, the withdrawal may be rather lengthened, depending upon China's attitude. I hope that the foreign Powers will correctly recognise this case and will cooperate with us toward a speedy recovery of this international city back to normalcy.

- G. How far away beyond Shanghai will your operations intend to cover? Will it cover as far as Soochow or Nanking?
- A. I have already stated that the object of dispatching troops to Shanghai was to prevent as much as possible the disastrous expansion of the situation, to exterminate
- quickquickty and peacefully the unsasiness of Japanese nationals over their lives and properties, and to permit the foreigners living in Shanghai to enjoy the same pleasures and happiness as the Japanese. No one desires the expansion of the trouble. If there should be anyone wh who desires it, "it would be the certain Chinese military clique and the Chinese Communist Party, who, by complicating trouble between Japan and China, plot to involve Britain and American into the whirl of confusion. Such being the case, it would be clear to you that Japan has no intention of carrying out it operation to any distant place from Shanghai, However, I with you to understand this that, if any unfortunate incident should arise which appeared a meance to our troops, then that notion would become a basis for our troops to operate. In any case, it is quite proper that Chinese troops be demanded to withdrawing from Shanghai, international city, so as not to threaten the safety of the city, and the problem lies in whether the demand will be settled by diplomatic negotiations, without any bloodshed, or whether it necessitates the execution of force. We, of course, prefer the former, but I regret to say it is quite dubious that the Nineteenth Noute Army would withdraw peacefully.

- Q. There is a rumor prevailing in Japan proper that Japan will carry out a general mobilization, but is there really such plan.
- A. ..bsolutely not. I wish you don't believe in false rumors.

 I feel that if an influential establishment like your firm believed in such a rumor and made report of it without first investigating its truth, it will cause considerable harm to your public.
- Q. What are the plans of the Army concerning the South and West of Manchuria, that is, Peiping, Tientsin and Jehol districts?
- A. Nothing is being planned.
- Q. Does the War Minister consider it necessary to expand the military actions over the a ove-mentioned area in order to secure law and order in "anchuria?
- n. The present situation as it is, he does not consider it necessary to do so.
- Shanghai vicinity, to what extent will the Japanese Expenditionary Force take joint operations with the armies of foreign powers in Shanghai?

The Practical side of this question has been left exclusively to the discretion of the Commander of the Expeditionary Force thero. Our forces have especially demanded of the commander that we aim to promote peace and prosperity in Shanghai with the spirit of cooperation and mutual assistance with the foreign powers concerned, and also endeavour to contribute to peace and welfare in the Far East.

(2) Talks with Mr. Roosevelt, Governor-General of the Philippine Islands.

(21st February 1932)

Mr. Roosevelt, Governor-General of the Philippine Islands who stopped over in Tokyo for two days on the way to his new post, visited War minister Araki at his orficial residence at 40 minutes past ten a.m. on 20th February 1932 and after a conference of about 40 minutes, left there. "mong the subjects of the conference, those which were related to the current affairs were as follow.

(Mr. Roosevelt was accompanied with Mr. Forbes, American Ambassador to Japan, Lt. Vol. MacRoy, Military Attache and one other).

Governor-General. Are you intending to reinforce the troops in Shanghai, and would the Japanese troops march out beyond the line of 20 kilometrem?

Miniter Our intention is to minimize the theatre of operation in Shanghai, settle the matter in the quickest manner and to restore the state of peace to Shanghai.

Whither we will march beyond the line of 20 kilometers or not so lely depends on China's attitude and also on the situations in the future. If they challenge us from beyond the line, I am afraid we will have to cross this line to meet it.

The Chinese 19th Army is primarily a Canton army and in includes in it some red troops. It is reported to have been supported by Chiang Kail-Shok and its present strength is over ninety thousand, and so whether we would reinforce our troops or not is to be decided in accordance with the movement of this army, but we are hoping for an amicable settlement of the matter with the present strength upon negotiations on the spot. As for the size of the troops to be dispatched, it is the question to be decided by the General Staff Headquarter and they are now studying the matter.

- Ambassador Forbes If the 19th Army included rod troops, why don't you get Chinese white troops to attack it?
- Minister Chinese troops are quite inconstant. Today's red troops could easily be the temorrow's white troops, and as they are not dependable, what you suggest is desirable for us but not practicable.
- American Attache According to informations we have received, the Soviet Union has recently reinforced their garrison in Russo-Chinese border; Tank and air force in particular were said to have been strengthened. Did you know anything about this?
- Minister I was informed that they strengthened the garrison in Vladivostok, but was also informed that they did not appear intending to make trouble with the Japanese force.

Further information from other source reported mo that Chiang Mai-Shok is planning to establish a new line of communication within three months in order to transport from Sirkiang to China three million rounds of rifle ammunitions and other arms and ammunitions which he had asked the Soviet for supply.

(3) Gist of discussion in the conference between the party of the League of Nations Inquiry Committee and War Minister Araki.

The party of the League of Nations Inquiry Committee visited War Minister Araki at his official residence at ten o'clock on 5th March 1932 and had a conference with him until noon. The following is the gist of discussions recorded out of the writer's memory after the conference was closed, and is not the one duly censored by the speakers of the conference.

Colonel Furujo, Chief of Press Section, War Ministry.

Lord Lytton Today I should like to ask you about relations between Manchuria and Japan, as viewed specially from operational stand point.

Minister In order to answer the question, I must explain you first the real state of affairs in Manchuria, and then the principle and policy of Japan at the time of her foundation as well as the mission and duty charged on Japan in the East. I shall try to be as brief as possible. In order to explain you the mission tasked on Japanese people, I want you to have a clear conception of the national polity of Japan.

The essential point of Japan's national polity is selfexplanatory in the fact that the policy of the Imperial House has always been fully supported by the people, and this principle is very well expressed in the spirits represented by the Three Sacred Treasures of the Imperial Household. Among the Three Sacred Teasures, The Mirror expresses Fairness and Justice. The Beak expresses Philanthropism and Love of Human Beings. The Sword expresses Realization or Practice. These are concurrently the spirits of the Imperial House and the people have put them into practice to lay founda. tion for the existence of Japan. Japan has had three hundled years of peace, due to close door policy of Tokugawa Government. During these long period of time, Japanese people had quite accustomed themselves to peace, and it was only when the door was opened in the beginning of Meiji Era that they started communication with the outside world.

Japan in those days had a land of only 140,000 square miles (present area is 260,000 sq. miles) and of this small area, only 15 % was cultivable, the rest being hilly or uncultivable land and so the general condition should be said much worse than that of Finland or Italy.

Since the Meiji Era, its population made a tremendous increase on the small area, and Japan could barely made the present progress thanks to the ivestments of European and American countries. During these time, China several times abetted Japan, with the result that Tsushima and Hokkaido were endangered and Korea was threatened.

In fact, Korea was placed under Chinese control at the occasion of 1884 incident and at several other occasions. Then Sino-Japan war broke out. Against Chinese battleships of 7,000 ton class, such as Tingyuan and Chingyuan, Japan fought with 3,000 ton class battleships and as the result of this war, China concessed Formosa to Japan. Then there arose the question with Russia, that was Three Power Interference. Incidentally, this was the incident which infuriated me and made me determine to become a soldier As the result of this Three Power Interference, the Liaotung Peninsular was retroceded to China, and this incident created a very bitter impression of Manchurian problems among the Japanese people. Thus Russia gained hegemony over Manchuria and opened up a cause for the Russian problems of to-day. When Manchuria was abandoned by China and was dominated by Russia for ten years, what impressed the youth of Japan more than anything else was the Manchurian problem, and it was felt that unless the threatening over Manchuria was eliminated, the peace of the East should never be established. Thus the Russo-Japanese War broke out and was fought in 1904-1905.

Besides this vitally important problem, consideration must also be given to the questions concerning livelihood. The world closed its doors against Japan. California did it and so did Australia. It necessitated Japan to depend on Manchuria for its existence in this world, and so the Japanese people placed much importance in the Manchurian problems.

Lytton As the measures to counter with the increased population of Japan, does Japan need Manchuria for the supply of raw materials, and does Japan intend to rely solely on the rights which Japan had acquired in Manchuria in the past?

Minister Japan is contented if only she could administer her rightful actions there, because all that Japan requires is to pursue along the natural path of human kind; in another words, Japan is contented to live within the sphere that the world is willing to admit for Japan, and in order to do so, Japan must begin by realizing peace and by practicing philanthropism under the spirits of fairness and justice. To be more precise, we aim at creating peaceful Manchuria where our daily life is rationalized to its highest extent.

We require Manchuria in such a condition where Japanese people can discharge their duty toward the East and can live without being subject to capitalistic exploitation, and where all the people, whatever nationality they may be, Japanese, Koreans, Chinese, Europeans or Americans, can live peacefully under rationalized daily method. And so what we require is to bring peace for the world wide human beings, and if Russia disturbs it, we must do something to stop it.

Manchuria, for the past twenty years after the Chinese Revolution, has been in constant chaos. Every effort on the part of Japan for maintaining peace in that country was always disappointed and disturbed by China. It was more aggravated after the retrocession of Tsingtao. Movements for anti-Japanese and for contempting or insulting Japanese were seen everywhere in Manchuria, on top of it, the recent Major Nakamura Incident and the Wan-pao-shan Incident and several other incidents of the similar nature led the condition from bad to worse. These Anti-Japanese and other movements which were carried out for many years in the past have infuriated the Japanese people and contributed toward consolidating their will.

As Japan's object is to maintain peace in Manchuria by way of preventing any peace-disturbing interference, all that Japan requires from tactical view point is the freedom of actions sufficient to secure peace in that country Here I should like to reiterate my former assertion that is there any other country, beside Japan, which should be able to maintain peace in the East?

- Lytton Do you require Manchurian government, in favour of Japan, as a kind of shock absorbing zone between China and Japan? Or does Japan need to take an offensive in accordance with the provisions of various treaties that Japan has signed by this time?

- Minister Under the present circumstances in the East, all that Japan requires is maintenance of peace in Manchuria, and whether peace be maintained or not largely depends on the extent of confidence which foreign powers will place on the new government. In another words, we require in Manchuria a new nation which is powerful enough to maintain peace in Manchuria and incidentally peace in the East.

 If foundation of new nation which is powerful enough to maintain peace in Manchuria fails to realize, Japan will have to apply some means to secure peace there.
- Major General McCoy (U.S.A.) As far as China is concerned, Japan may be satisfied with the new nation in Manchuria which is powerful enough to maintain peace within Manchuria, but what Japan would do if Russia invaded there?
- Minister There are two kinds of national defence. One is from relative necessity and the other is from absolute necessity. The question lies in whether Russia can be trustful, either from view point of thought or international considerations. Then there is China which, at present, is not a conformed nation. Japan only requires peace in the East in the minimum way. If Russia tries to invade into the East, either for the purpose of spreading their principle or for other purpose, Japan cannot leave it alone. On the other hand, if China establishes any dependable government, Japan also must take appropriate means to correspond it. I fail to see any reason why Russia must reinforce their force in the Far East and in my opinion, they whould withdraw their force from the East for the sake of peace in the East.

(4) War Minister reveals to a French Correspondent his true motive for remaining in the office in the new cabinet.

Statement From the their Committee of Questions raised by Mrs. Violis, correspondent to the "Petit Parisien", a French paper, and answers to it by the War Minister.

- Q. What do you think is the public opinion on your decision for remaining in the post?
- A. I have no time for public Criticism. My principle is that as long as God really knows me, I don't want the people to know me.
- Q. If your Excellency have any message to be conveyed to the French people, I should be glad to hear of it.
- A. France is the first nation whose people really assumed the most sincere attitude in trying to understand the feeling of Japanese people of late and we are very grateful for their sympathy with us.

In the last European war, Japan cooperated with France and enthusiastically devoted herself for the task of upholding peace, morality and justice of the world.

What Japan desires now is the promotion of world's peace and establishment of international justice. I hope that the French people will understand the real cause for international peace in connection with the Japan's position in the world end, will plunge a step forward toward promotion of peace under cooperation with our country. I have been paying my profound respect toward patriotism of French people who have never lost their passionate devotion to their mother land throughout difficulties, however untearable they may have been. The admirable attitude of the French people in which the whole nation united after the France-Prussian War and their unbending morale and patriotism displayed in the face of great difficulties throughout the last great war have deeply impressed the hearts of Japanese people, who found in them something corresponding to their own feeling. Please convey to the people of France, our friendly nation, my sincere respect as well as my hearty pray for the continuance of this spirits forever.

(5) The substance of what War Minister Araki talked to Lord Lytton and his party at the conference.

(7th July 1932)

In order to explain you Japan's attitude and policy as viwed from international stand point, I should like to ask you to understand first the present system of culture in Japan, people's natural aspiration arising from this system and the actual state of affairs of the friendly nations which have direct relation with Japan, especially of those which surround this country. I have already explained you in our last meeting several problems concerning Japan, and so today I wish to give my appreciation and deduction of the future situation of the East, and with it I hope to explain the inevitable appropriateness of the present Japan's policy toward the East, especially toward Manchuria and Mongolia, which was based on Japan's heart felt desire for establishment of peace in the East. It is as follow.

(1) FUTURE OF CHINA The basic factor which u nderlies all the considerations for the Eastern problems is the existence of the Han race community, which is consist of a huge population of four hundred million and which locates on a vast area resulting from four thousand years of historical development. It was for this reason that Japan had proposed and asked for the study of China at the beginning of your present investigation.

This race had its own characteristic civilization, developed on its close-door policy, until 1840. Then it had to face the modern European civilization as the result of the Opium War. This change, combined with the characteristic nature of Chinese community of being easily subject to discorder, sow the seeds for future confusion and this state has been brought over until today.

When I consider future of Chinese race as one of the criental people who are now in the process of many years of historical development, I regret to have to say that as long as the senior nations of the civilized world continue their present attitude of being too mercenary in Chinese affairs and continue to work in such a way as to force the gratitude of Chinese people. Chine will be bound to maintain the present chaotic state almost for ever and I am very much afraid it will give ample opportunities in the nearest future for the dreadful communistic bandits in China to disturb law and order in all parts of China.

Under the circumstance, what underlies Japan's concrete policy toward China is her firm determination to do all she can to prevent the occurrence of such regrettable state and in case it should occur, to restore peace in the East, appointing herself as the central power of the worldwide human co-operation. If you will consider the political and social conditions of China since 1912 revolution, and especially the state in which the "Third Internationale" assisted the revolution, and if you will compare it to the political conditions of China in olden times, you will be bound to come to the conclusion that China is now actually on the slant to this regrettable state. In view of four hundred million people, vest area and economic worth contained in this country, it is a great and common problem the world to study, with every available world's knowledge together, how to give China an appropriate guidence, and this is the most important matter with which Japan has been concerned at all times.

(3) Japan's fundamental policy toward China

The existence of the above two important facts plays the decisive part in determining Japan's fundamental policy toward the East. The only possible means that we can take at this important time is to deal with the actual problems in cooperation with the party which really wishes for an establishment of perticl peace in several localities in Chine in succession until it covers whole of the area. Caution must be taken while doing as above so that timely and appropriate means can immediately be adopted in case the life and property of foreign nationals living in the area should be in any way menaced. The most essential point is to keep away from calemities, and so if it were necessary for this purpose, we will have to put in force our right of self-defence. This is really of vital importance to Japan, so important that we call it our life line, and it is more so in Monchuria then in any other place in the East. You have made the inspecting tour throughout Manchuria now, and so I trust you would have been convinced of the vitel importance of Manchuria in relation to existence of Japan. Now I wish you to further understand that Manchuria is an absolute necessity for Japan either from goo-graphical or from national defence point of view.

(4) Japan's Policy toward Panchurie As you know, there was founded in Menchurir a new country with full spirits of independence. As long as this new country endeavours to establish peace in the East, without losing her initial spirits of independence and in cooperation with our country, all that Japan hopes for is her sound development, and we are quite willing to do our best to support her. If this new country will make a sound end steady progress toward her initial ideal at the time of foundation, I am sure Menchuria will turn out to be an indicator to political security of other perts of Chine continent. Even a single baby, when born, must be brought up, This is the humanity. Much more so when it is a life of a nation, founded by aspirations of thirty million people. You will agree with me that when a nction is born, the other nation which meinteins close interest with the new nation would not be able to ignore its existence; on the contrary, the latter will endeavour to assist the former to become a complete independent state in the quickest manner, and I trust this is what any nation should either from humanity or from international moral point of view.

Japan considers that the sound development of Manchoukuo is the first corner stone on which peace in the East can be established and on this belief, is carrying out the present national movement with the whole hearted desire to prevent happenings of any further bloodshed incident in the Asiatic continent.

1. National defence of Manchukuo All the problems in Manchoukuo have direct and indivisible interest with the fate of Japanese Empire by the following reasons;

- 22 -

- 1. Manchoukuo constitutes the first fromt line for the defence of Japanese Empire.
- '2 Manchoukuo constitutes a wital line of our national economy.
- 3 In view of historical and present relations between Manchoukuo and our country, Manchoukuo is an object of special interest of Japanese people.

Menchoukuo maintains very important organic relations with Japan in the above mentioned points and therefore it is important for Japan; but in addition to this, it constitutes an advance guard line against the "third internationals which is a common enemy to all the civilized nations of the world. Maintenance of law and order in Manchoukuo and its due development to such an extent as an establishment of ideal land for co-existence and co-prosperity for both Chinese and Japanese people, are two conditions absolutely necessary for the sound existence of Japanese Empire and I may further say that fate of Manchoukuo has direct concern over that of Japan. This is the reason why Japan is paying more attention than any other country in the world to the problem of defence of Manchoukuo.

2. Communications in Manchoukuo. Due to unsystematic method of construction during the time of old military clique domination, each trunk line of railway in Manchuria has its own operation system which is indifferent to that of others, while communication system has made local and independent development in each city and town, with the result that the whole communication and traffic system in Manchoukuo lacks the vital necessity of controlled operation throughout Manchuria.

Since the general condition in Manchuria is as stated before, the installations and equipment for traffic and communications play an important role to cope with the present situations; for the maintenance of law and order on one hand, and for the economic development of natural resources at present and in the future on the other, prompt management of these installations under controlled system is urgently required.

3. Montion of Japanese as Manchoukuo Government Officials.

With the outbreak of Manchurian incident, those government officials who used to work under the old "North-Eastern" regime have almost all absconded and so the new government is inviting the trustworthy people among the Manchurians to join it in order to realize, by their cooperation, the long desired peace and happiness of all the inhabitants and to establish an ideal land in Manchuria The appearance of such new state as above in Manchuria is nothing but the result of aspirations of all the Manchurian and Mongolian people, and it does not in any way contradict Japan's traditional foreign policy of establishing the complete peace in the East, and so Japan has no reason to reject this new state, on the contrary, Japan only wishes its healthy development in Manchuria. Under these considerations, Japan is approving Manchoukuo's adoption of Japanese nationals for its government officials. All the Japanese officials in Manchoukuo government are the people inflamed with self-sacrificing spirits, end immune from any mercenery calculation for themselves; They are now striving to found a new nation at a place where maintenance of law and order is always precarious and where their lives are always in peril.

4. Withdrawel of Japanese Troops into the Manchurian Railwey Zone
In view of the present state of effairs in Manchuria, it is the duty of

of. Doc. #1348

properties of the Japanese nationals as well as their existing rights, and the subjugation compaign against bandits arises from the necessity of discharging this duty. We have twice made this point clear, once one on 10th December at the occasion of adoption of decision of League of Nations Directors Meeting, when we declared to reserve our right of executing the above campaign, and we further clarified this matter in our Third Declaration on 27th December.

Manchurian Railway Zone may be when the bandits in Manchuria are annihilated or completely subjugated and when there should be no fear of disturbance of peace and order either from internally or externally, and accordingly it would be the time when there should be no necessity of our militarty action; but since Manch-oukuo has been founded, we like to work out into consideration the new state of affairs and also the desire of newly formed government.

5. Measures to solve the Manchurian Incident.

The best means to solve the Manchurian Incident would be to recognize the present situation of Manchuria on its way of daily progress, and set up measures based on the status quo.

Manchoukuo has now declared her willingness of fulfilling all the duties that she internationally owes and has promissed equal opportunity and open door policy to the world. As for her domestic policy, she is busily ment of general administrative matters. Thus, on both externally and internally, she is assiduously exerting herself to acquire sufficient function and strength to be called an independent country. The new situation which has appeared in Manchuria does not seem to disturbin any way the maintenance of peace in the East or the welfare of the human kind of the world; On the contrary, this is the realization of the aspirations of thirty million Manchurian people, and furthermore, there are good reasons to expect political settlement of China continent and promotion of Eastern peace upon this new situation. Rationally speaking, I trust every nation ought to expect and hope for the healthy development of this country.

If the Powers of the world should interfere with the new situations or should contrive to place the new government under Chinese regime or under international administration or to covert it into a mandated territory of the League of Nations, we cannot but consider it as being harmful to the sound development of Manchoukuo and as the one which tries to bring back to Manchuria the state of chaos which had existed before the incident. This is the cause of great anxiety for Japan which maintains special relation with Manchuria in respect of national defence, econom, and historical events, and I am afraid it will east described a shadows over peace in the East as well as on the international relation. Those that the Powers will have clear and accurate recognition of the present state of affairs in Manchuria and will give necessary and appropriate assitance to her development.

I venture to add that this is the quickest means of bringing down the Manchurian problems to an amicable settlement.

(6) Ideal of New Japan

Questions raised by Mr. Frazier Hunt, special correspondent to the Hearst International Press and the Cosmopolitan, and the representative of the National Broadcasting Company, and unswers to the same by War Minister Araki.

- Q. If all the successive cabinets fail to save the situations, people will come to regard the Fascist Cabinet to be an appropriate and justified one. What is your opinion about this?
- imported all the new thought, new religion and new culture of Buddhism, Confucianism and Christianity but our ancestors have succeeded in masticate them, digest them and in turning them into blood and flesh to nourish us. These contributed to add more glory on and displaying the glorious character of our Empire.

The Fascish which appeared in Italy was a product of specific circum: - ... stances of that country in which Italian race, history and geography were combined together, and so it may be adored in Italy by her country people under the dictatorship of Mr. Mussolini, but as far as Japan is concerned, we have our own ideal, that is "KODO" of Moral code of Imperial Japan" and it would be a very superficial view if any one says that Japan is going to be a country of that principle.

Q. Hash't the Japanese army the right of accelerating and inspiring the building of new Japan based on the pure Japanese ideal?

(Note: - Question means whether the army has right to use its force on the matter which it believes to be for the sake of Japan)

- A. It is not the army personnel alone, but the whole Japanese people who should endeavour to realize the ideal of Japanese Empire.

 The Imperial Japanese Army should not directly concern with the politics, because its ideal is to let no misrule exist in the country; Eurthermore, the Imperial Japanese Army moves and takes actions only when the august order of his Majesty the Emperor is given.
- Q. Your Excellency, do you not consider that the young men of the world as a whole, are week-kneed and depraved now?
- countries, but as far as Japanese are concerned, I bitterly feel the necessity of cultivating in them the spirit of fortitude and manliness, and this is exactly the line in which I am doing my utmos to push forward. However, I may say this to the credit of the Japanese youths. The valor shown by our young soldiers in Manchuria and Shanghai Incidents was a real wonder worth while admiring; Some of the scenes revealed by these youths were more impressionable than those at the time of Russo-Japanese War.

I am attributing this to the fact that the so-called "true spirit" of a Japanese began to work suddenly at the opportunity of these Incidents.

- Q. Mr. Theodore Roosevolt once said that a war was necessary for a nation to uphold its spirit and soul. What do you think of this, Your Excellency?
- A. An attempt of a war on the part of a nation is an act of disgracing the spirit of sword and should be considered a crime under any circumstances; at the same time, it would also be an act of crime if a nation showed too strong attachment to the peace. People must have enough courage to resolutely carryout the war if they believed that the war was to the cause of justice. I call this the moral duty charged to nation. Now then, the question is on which occasion does a nation need to fight. Every nation has the right of self-prote-ction and autonomy. Every nation has her own cultural and moral mission which is aptly called "soul of a nation" by Mr. Roosevelt, and so when her autonomy is interfered with and her independence is imperialed, it is the most proper moral right of the nation to wage a war. In this sense, I can say that Mr. Roosevelt's view on war contains much truth in it.
- Q. Do you not consider that the whole political and economic organizations of the world have failed and disclosed their weakness and that now is the time to completely restablish these organizations?
- 4. It would absolutely be impossible at any time and in any place to establish political and economic organizations satisfactory to all the people, but I trust it is the natural duty of every one to make his steady effort toward improvement of political and economical conditions of the community to which he belongs.
